

A gateway server includes a convert section and an output section. The convert section converts a first contents into a second contents. The first contents is received from a contents server in response to a request of a small terminal. The second contents corresponds to a display performance of a display section of the small terminal. The output section outputs the second contents to the small terminal.